EAGERNESS OF THE NEGROES TO BE EDUCATED. - In riding over this island, and passing the varicus groups of negro houses on the plantations, I could not help being struck at the evidences which met my eye on every side of the enger desire of the freed people to obtain the desire of the freed people to obtain the education which they now con sider the main barrier against their complete equality with the whites. If their capacity learn could keep pace with their anxiety for mental improvement, the education of the entire black population bereabouts would be a task easily and quickly accom-plished. Every elony urchin that you meet is armed with a spelling-book, which re-ceives the most zealous and persevering attention, though the dog-cared instrument of learning is as often held upside-down as otherwise; and the adults emulate the diligence of their offspring in this respect. Glancing in the interior of the quarters as you pass, you will find huge pictorial alphabets affixed to the wall of almost every house, and in some cases, estentationally displayed on the outside of the house, close to the doorway. It may be that the letters fail to convey any distinct impression to the minds of these poor people; but they cer-tainly study over the woodcuts with a delight that betokens a large appreciation of their own increasing is telligence in being able to comprehend them. In spite of all the disadvantages under which they are striving for education, the improvement of the Edisto freedmen is a matter of general surprise and remark among the whites; and the new comer from the North and the planter of the old regime now unite in the anticipation that the lapse of a generation among the emancipated blacks, however it may affect their numbers and vigor as a race, will assuredly work wonders in the matter of their crulication and mental development, — Edisto, S. C., Cor. N. Y. Times.

I shall remain in the office with him until the first of October, after which he will be associated with Dr. N. W. I therefore while tendering my grateful acknowledgmants to the public for a long and liberal patronacs, respectfully solicit its continuance at the old stand, which I shall leave in the hands of two good dentists, both gentlemanly men and both well qualified to conduct a first class dental establishment.
